Jane Nabachwa – Vice President

Uganda Association of Quebec (UAQ)

Jane Nabachwa serves as the Vice President of the Uganda Association of Quebec (UAQ), where she supports the President in providing strategic leadership, coordinating organizational operations, and advancing the association's mission of unity, empowerment, cultural preservation, and community service.

In her role, Jane works closely with the President, executive leadership, departmental directors, volunteers, and community partners to ensure that UAQ's programs, policies, and activities are implemented effectively. She assists in coordinating departments, monitoring progress, supporting decision-making, and promoting cooperation across the association.

Jane also represents UAQ at community meetings, cultural events, partnership engagements, and other official functions. In the President's absence, she provides leadership and ensures continuity in the association's operations and responsibilities.

Passionate about teamwork and community development, Jane is committed to creating an inclusive environment where members are heard, respected, and encouraged to participate. She supports initiatives that promote newcomer integration, youth and family development, cultural identity, member welfare, education, and stronger relationships within Quebec's multicultural community.

Jane believes that effective leadership is built on service, integrity, communication, and collaboration. Through her dedication and supportive leadership, she continues to strengthen UAQ's internal operations while helping the association respond to the changing needs of Ugandans living in Quebec.

Her vision is to help build a united and empowered community in which every member has an opportunity to belong, contribute, grow, and succeed.

Personal Motto:

"Leading through service, strengthening teamwork, and advancing unity for a better community."
